

A Genealogical Profile of John Allerton

Birth: John Allerton was probably born prior to 1588.

Death: He died during the first winter in Plymouth Colony.

Ship: Mayflower, 1620

Life in England: Nothing is known of his life in England although he was probably a kinsman of Mayflower passenger Isaac Allerton.

Life in Holland: A “Jan Alaerton” living in Pieterskerkhof, the area around the church, had a child buried in the Pieterskerk in Leiden on May 21, 1616. He has been tentatively identified as the man of the same name aboard the Mayflower in 1620.

Life in New England: John Allerton was a colonist but, in William Bradford’s words, “was to go back (being a seaman) for the help of others left behind.” He died before April 5, 1621, when the Mayflower left New England.

Family: If John Allerton was identical with the man in Leiden, then he was married before May 1616, when a child of his was buried in Leiden. If so, the wife’s name is unknown, as well as any other children.

PLYMOUTH ANCESTORS

Where do I go from here?

Researching your family's history can be a fun, rewarding, and occasionally frustrating project. Start with what you know by collecting information on your immediate family. Then, trace back through parents, grandparents, and beyond. This is a great opportunity to speak to relatives, gather family stories, arrange and identify old family photographs, and document family possessions that have been passed down from earlier generations.

Once you have learned all you can from family members, you will begin to discover other sources. A wide variety of records can help you learn more about the lives of your ancestors. These include birth, marriage, and death records; immigration and naturalization records; land records; census records; probate records and wills; church and cemetery records; newspapers; passenger lists; military records; and much more.

When you use information from any source — an original record, a printed book, or a website — always be careful to document it. If you use a book, you should cite the author or compiler, the full title, publication information and pages used. Also be sure to record the author's sources for the information. If the author's sources aren't provided, you will have to try to find the original source. Many genealogical works contain faulty information, and the Internet also contains many inaccuracies. In order for your work to be accepted — by lineage societies and other genealogists — it must be properly documented.

IMPORTANT GENEALOGICAL RESOURCES

New England Historic Genealogical Society

Founded in 1845, NEHGS is the country's oldest and largest genealogical society. The library contains over 200,000 books, plus significant manuscript and microfilm collections, and a circulating library by mail. NEHGS members receive two periodicals, the Register and New England Ancestors, and can access valuable genealogical data online.
