

A genealogical profile of John Dunham

Birth: John Dunham was born about 1587.

Death: He died in Plymouth on March 2, 1668/9.

Ship: Unknown, 1632

Life in England: John Dunham has been tentatively identified as the son of Richard Dunham of Langford, Bedfordshire.

Life in Holland: John Dunham and three children were listed as inhabitants of Zevenhuysen in Leiden in the October 15, 1622, census.

Life in New England: John Dunham first appeared in the Plymouth records in 1633, being listed in both the 1633 list of freemen and in the March 25, 1633, tax list for Plymouth. During his life, he served on many juries and committees. He was a deputy to the Plymouth court for many years, beginning in 1639, and a selectman from 1644. He was also chosen as a deacon of the Plymouth church. By occupation, he was a weaver, a craft he may have learned in England. He was described at his death as a deacon in the Plymouth church, but it is not known when he was chosen.

Family: John Dunham married (1) Susan Kaino in Clophill, Bedfordshire on August 17, 1612, and had three children. He married (2) Abigail Balliou in Leiden on October 22, 1622, and had eight children. She was still living in 1669.

Where do I go from here?

Researching your family's history can be a fun, rewarding, and occasionally frustrating project. Start with what you know by collecting information on your immediate family. Then, trace back through parents, grandparents, and beyond. This is a great opportunity to speak to relatives, gather family stories, arrange and identify old family photographs, and document family possessions that have been passed down from earlier generations.

Once you have learned all you can from family members, you will begin to discover other sources. A wide variety of records can help you learn more about the lives of your ancestors. These include birth, marriage, and death records; immigration and naturalization records; land records; census records; probate records and wills; church and cemetery records; newspapers; passenger lists; military records; and much more.

When you use information from any source — an original record, a printed book, or a website — always be careful to document it. If you use a book, you should cite the author or compiler, the full title, publication information and pages used. Also be sure to record the author's sources for the information. If the author's sources aren't provided, you will have to try to find the original source. Many genealogical works contain faulty information, and the Internet also contains many inaccuracies. In order for your work to be accepted — by lineage societies and other genealogists — it must be properly documented.
