

A Genealogical Profile of Francis Cooke

Birth: Francis Cooke was born about 1583.

Death: He died in Plymouth on April 7, 1663.

Ship: Mayflower, 1620

Life in England: Francis Cooke and his family spent some time in Norwich, Norfolk between 1606 and 1608, but the purpose is unknown. Hester Cooke identified herself as being from Canterbury in her betrothal registration.

Life in Holland: Francis Cooke was living in Leiden by April 1603, when he worked there as a woolcomber. His wife's family were Walloons, originally from the town of Lille in Flanders, coming to Leiden from London in 1590. Hester joined the Walloon church just before her betrothal, but there is no record of Francis joining. He did appear in the records as witness to a baptism and a betrothal. Three of their children are listed in the church records between 1607–1611, but none thereafter and they may have joined the English Separatist church at that time.

Life in New England: Francis Cooke and his son John came to New England aboard the Mayflower. Hester, Jane, Jacob and Hester joined them in the summer of 1623, coming over on the Anne or Little James. Francis was in the 1633 list of Plymouth freemen and served on various committees and juries over the years. Although he owned land on the North River and Namaskett, he remained in Plymouth.

Family: Francis Cooke married Hester Mahieu in Leiden on July 20, 1603, or shortly thereafter. They had seven children. The birth order for the first three is uncertain. Hester died after June 8, 1666.
